If you wish to apply for a Screen Territory grant you must read the information for applicants and general eligibility criteria, as well as the guidelines for the specific program you are interested in, to confirm whether or not you/your project is eligible.

Eligible applications are competitively assessed against published assessment criteria, and as a consequence, funding is not assured even where an application meets the eligibility criteria. Further, receipt of previous funding does not by itself guarantee the success of any future applications.

HOW TO APPLY

All applicants must apply online using GrantsNT. If you are unable to use the application system due to access or technology issues, please contact Screen Territory.

Before applying, you should:

- read the ‘Information for applicants’ and ‘General eligibility’ guidelines as well as the guidelines for the funding program you wish to apply for, to check whether you/your project is eligible and confirm the application materials you will need to submit

Definitions

Northern Territory resident

A Northern Territory Resident is defined as a person who is domiciled in the Northern Territory, and who has actually been in the Northern Territory during more than one half of the year immediately preceding the application, and is registered on the Northern Territory electoral role.

Exemptions may apply where an individual can demonstrate a strong Northern Territory background and/or ongoing relationship to the Northern Territory.

Northern Territory company

A Northern Territory Company must be registered under the Corporations Act and have:

- its principal place of business in Northern Territory; and
- at least 50% beneficial ownership by a Northern Territory resident(s).

Exemptions may apply where the company can demonstrate a strong track record and commitment to the Northern Territory industry over a minimum two-year period. Screen Territory also reserves the right to make further exemptions in cases where there are exceptional benefits for the local industry.

Genuine co-production partnership with a Northern Territory company

A genuine co-production relationship with a Northern Territory company must be evidenced by both co-producers sharing creative involvement, copyright and profit entitlements on a pro rata basis and sharing credit entitlements by way of a shared card. Variations may be considered in exceptional circumstances.

Acting in good faith

Screen Territory acts in the public interest and must exhibit the highest levels of propriety in its dealings with applicants. Screen Territory requires applicants to act in the same way in their dealings with Screen Territory. Applicants must be open and honest in all dealings with Screen Territory, and comply with requests to provide information in relation to their applications. They must not mislead or deceive Screen Territory by any act or omission.

Screen Territory also expects all successful applicants to act fairly and reasonably to all third parties involved in their project.

Fairness and reasonableness includes:

- paying at least the award minimum rates or, where applicable, any minimum agreed between the relevant guilds, for all work performed by third parties on their project, including key creative team members, cast and crew; and

Evidence of consultation and consent appropriate to the relevant stage of production must be submitted as part of your application materials.

For further information see Pathways & Protocols: A filmmaker's guide to working with Indigenous people, culture and concepts, available online from Screen Australia, or in hard copy from Screen Territory.
ASSESSMENT

Assessment of all applications is on the basis of the information supplied in the application and the accompanying support material.

Each application is assessed on its merits, as well as relative to other applications if it has been submitted as part of a funding round or special initiative.

Grant decisions are not subject to appeal.

Who assesses and approves applications?

Applications are considered by relevant industry experts, generally members of the Screen Territory Advisory Panel, and approved by the Director, Screen Territory or the Minister for Tourism, Sport and Culture, depending on the type of program and size of the grant.

The Screen Territory Advisory Panel is appointed by the Minister, and provides for industry involvement and specialist advice in decision-making in relation to Northern Territory Government screen grants, to ensure a transparent and accountable process for the allocation of grant funding. Find out more about the Screen Territory Advisory Panel on the Screen Territory website.

Screen Territory’s Conflict of Interest Policy applies both to industry specialists engaged as consultants, whether on a project basis or longer term, and to all Screen Territory staff involved in assessment or decision-making.

How does the process work?

1. Receipt: Applications are received by Screen Territory via GrantsNT

2. Assessment:

   For grants up to and including $5,000, and special industry development initiatives:
   - Applications are assessed by at least one external industry specialist, who may be a member of the Screen Territory Advisory Panel.

   For grants over $5,000 or round-based programs:
   - Applications are assessed by the Screen Territory Advisory Panel

Assessors receive applications, confirm whether each application is eligible, and assess eligible applications against the published assessment criteria, completing notes and scores for each, based on the ratings scale below.

3. Recommendation and decision:

   For grants up to and including $5,000, and special industry development initiatives:
   - The assessor makes recommendations for decision by the Director, Screen Territory.

   For grants over $5,000 or round-based programs:
   - The Screen Territory Advisory Panel meets, discusses applications and provides recommendations for funding. Screen Territory acts as Secretariat.
   - Recommendations are forwarded to the Minister for Tourism, Sport and Culture for decision.

Whether an application is recommended for funding, and the amount of funding to be provided, are determined based on the total ratings score for all criteria as well as other factors such as competitiveness of a funding round and availability of funds.

4. Notification

   For grants up to and including $5,000, and special industry development initiatives:
   - Screen Territory notifies all applicants of the outcome of their application.

   For grants over $5,000 or round-based programs:
   - The Minister’s office advises Screen Territory of approvals and sends out letters to successful applicants.
Screen Territory funding guidelines Round 1 2019/20

- Screen Territory notifies unsuccessful applicants.
- Screen Territory follows up all successful applicants with a contract (grant agreement) for signature.
- Funding approvals are listed on the Screen Territory website.

Feedback

Applicants can obtain verbal feedback about their application by contacting Screen Territory.

Publication

Details of all grants are published on the Grant Recipients page on the Screen Territory website, and in the Department of Tourism, Sport and Culture Annual Report for the relevant financial year.
CONTRACTING AND ACQUIJTAL

Screen Territory contracting process

Successful applicants across all funding programs will be required to sign a grant agreement between themselves and the Northern Territory government prior to the release of funds.

Applicants will be responsible for any legal costs they incur in relation to checking the grant agreement prior to signing.

Extensive amendments to Screen Territory’s grant agreement will generally not be agreed to.

ABN and GST

Successful applicants are required to have an ABN, otherwise Screen Territory will be obliged by law to withhold an amount of tax from amounts due to the applicant, and remit those amounts to the Australian Tax Office (ATO).

The withholding does not apply where the applicant qualifies for exemption from the requirement to have an ABN. Prior to the release of payment, the applicant will be required to establish their exemption by providing a completed ATO ‘Statement by a Supplier’ form (NAT3346-04.2008) setting out their reason for not requiring an ABN.

GST is payable on Screen Territory’s grants where the applicant is registered for GST and makes a taxable supply to Screen Territory.

Promotional material

Screen Territory requires the right to use pre-approved excerpts from the project and promotional materials for its own corporate and promotional purposes, including for research, reporting and any activity that promotes the government’s support for the screen industries.

Crediting Screen Territory

Recipients of Screen Territory funding are required to credit Screen Territory on the terms set out in the signed grant agreement. Credit requirements vary according to the nature of the support.

The Screen Territory logo is available at www.screenterritory.nt.gov.au/about/logos.

For specific credit requirements please contact Screen Territory.

Acquitting a grant

Recipients of funding through the Screen Territory Grants Program are required to provide Screen Territory with an acquittal for the grant, which includes delivery materials and reports, including financial reports. The acquittal requirements vary depending on the type of grant and are clearly detailed in the grant agreement.

Failure to provide these items to Screen Territory by the due date is a breach of the grant agreement.

What are we looking for?

The demand for project development support is greater than Screen Territory’s ability to fund all the projects that might apply. Screen Territory therefore aims to focus its support on outstanding projects that:

- have a strong Northern Territory angle, whether that’s through the story, subject matter, settings, or characters, or through unique Northern Territory perspectives on universal themes provided by Territory creatives, and

- are well thought out, even in their early form:

  Drama projects should already have a clear premise, the main beats of a strong core story worked out in short document form, and a relationship to a specific audience.

  Documentary/factual proposals need to be more than an idea. We’ll be looking for a clear narrative structure, argument or line of enquiry, as well as your particular stylistic approach.
SEED FUNDING

Screen Territory will support Northern Territory writers, directors and producers to explore the potential of creative ideas through the development of a treatment or proposal and support materials.

Funding available

Up to $5,000 per application, supported by a budget.

Whether a project will be funded, and the amount of Screen Territory funding, will be determined by the assessment process (see ‘Information for applicants’) and the total demand on available funds.

Eligibility

All applications must meet the general eligibility requirements for Screen Territory funding, in addition to the following:

Who can apply

The applicant must be a Northern Territory resident or a Northern Territory company (see ‘General eligibility’, page 5, for definitions). Non-NT residents or non-NT companies are not eligible for this program.

Seed funding is available to experienced practitioners as well as to emerging practitioners i.e. who do not yet have an ‘eligible screen credit’ (see box page 14) of at least 10 minutes in duration.

Emerging practitioners will need to submit additional materials in order to demonstrate their capabilities (see ‘Application materials’ below), and Screen Territory may require the attachment of a mentor or story consultant where appropriate.

Project requirements

The following formats are eligible for funding through this program:

- feature films
- adult and children’s drama and narrative comedy including television series, miniseries, telemovies and web series
- content-rich factual/documentary television or web programs.

Assessment

Eligible applications will be assessed taking into account:

- The strength and distinctiveness of the concept or story idea, and its potential to engage an audience.
- The cultural significance of the project for the Northern Territory.
- The track record and demonstrated potential of the individual applicant or creative team.
- The feasibility of the development plan and appropriateness of the use of Screen Territory funds.

Application materials

All applicants must submit the following:

- Current one-page CVs for the applicant, and key creative team where attached.
- One-sentence synopsis, and one-paragraph (3–4 line) synopsis.
- A short document (no more than 8 pages) that communicates the concept and the main points of the story and evokes the experience of the film.
- A simple ‘talk to camera’ video pitch of up to three minutes describing:
• the concept for the project and its significance for the Northern Territory
• the potential audience for the project
• the current stage of the project (eg treatment, draft script or whatever form your project is in if your development plan is utilising more non-traditional approaches).

• A brief development plan, setting out what you will do with the requested funding, including what you will spend the money on, and (where relevant) details of relationships with any mentors or more experienced practitioners who have volunteered to support you.

In addition, where the applicant or team does not have an ‘eligible screen credit’ (see box page 14) of at least 10 minutes in duration, you must submit:
• an excerpt of script or treatment from any current or previous screen project (maximum 5 pages in total), and/or
• any other appropriate materials – such as links to short films or previous screen work – that demonstrate the storytelling style and abilities of the writer or writer/director.

Reporting and acquittal

If you are successful in receiving a Seed funding grant, your grant agreement will set out the reports and materials you have agreed to deliver in order to acquit the grant (based on your development plan), and an agreed project end date. You will be required to acquit the grant one month after the agreed project end date.

Reports and deliverables vary from project to project; however, in general you may need to provide the following:
• Deliverables relevant to your project development plan
• A report detailing:
  o The work undertaken during this stage of development.
  o The proposed next steps for developing the project.
• A signed breakdown of income and expenditure for the project including financial support received from the Territory or a third party.
PROJECT DEVELOPMENT

Funding available

Screen Territory will contribute to a development plan appropriate to the stage of the project, up to a maximum of $10,000 per application or, for more experienced applicants, up to $20,000 per application (see ‘Eligibility’ below).

Applications may be for any amount up to the stated maximum, supported by a budget.

Whether the project will be funded, and the amount of Screen Territory funding, will be determined by the assessment process (see ‘Information for applicants’) and the total demand on available funds.

A project may be funded more than once, as long as the previous grant has been successfully acquitted and significant development has taken place, up to a total cap of $30,000 of Screen Territory funds over the life of an individual project unless exceptional circumstances can be demonstrated.

What’s in a development plan?

Depending on your project and where it’s up to, your development plan might cover:

From concept or proposal to advanced treatment or script

Documentary projects:
- research
- writing a first or subsequent draft of an outline, treatment or script
- strategic shooting and/or editing (you should explain why shooting footage at this stage is vital to the realisation of the film)
- visualisation materials – storyboards, etc that help inform the creative process

Feature films, TV/web drama and narrative comedy:
- purchase of rights or option on rights
- story and character research
- developing a treatment, scene breakdowns and/or beat sheets
- writing a first or subsequent draft script
- developing a series bible, series outline, pilot script or first episode script
- script readings and/or workshops/writers’ rooms
- visualisation materials – storyboards, etc that help to inform the creative process, or test scenes (filming/production when part of the development process)

Late-stage development

Documentary projects, feature films, TV/web drama and narrative comedy:
- budgeting and scheduling
- consultation about digital elements, digital distribution platforms and audience engagement strategies
- developing pitch materials, teaser trailers, sizzle reels to attract finance.

Note that for TV drama projects, broadcasters generally like to see early-stage documents, not full drafts, before they become involved, so they can influence the project to meet their audience needs.

Eligibility

All applications must meet the general eligibility requirements for Screen Territory funding, in addition to the following (see ‘General eligibility’, page 5, for definitions of key terms):

Who can apply

Applications may be from an individual writer or writer/director, or from a production company or producer on behalf of a team including at least a writer and a producer. After one round of funding for a particular project, Screen Territory generally expects a producer to be attached for any subsequent applications for that project.

The applicant must be a Northern Territory resident or a Northern Territory company.

Applications from an NT production company on behalf of a co-production between it and a non-NT production company, will only be accepted where the arrangement is a genuine co-production and the application is for a project that has been generated in the Territory and has a Northern Territory writer or writer/director.

Non-NT resident production companies are not eligible for this program, other than in exceptional circumstances, and would only be considered at all where the project has a Northern Territory writer or writer/director. Non-NT resident companies should contact Screen Territory to discuss their project before submitting any application.

In addition:

• The applicant must either hold the rights necessary to make the project (as the writer/originator, or through appropriate agreements), or have an option to the rights in any and all works on which the project is based. If you are seeking funds to purchase an option, funding will only be released once the option is obtained.

• The applicant or at least one member of the applicant team must have the following credits, depending on the amount being sought:
  - applications up to and including $10,000: at least two ‘eligible screen credits’ (see box below) each of which is at least 10 minutes in total duration
  - applications $10,001-20,000: at least two ‘eligible screen credits’ (see box below) each of which is at least one hour (or broadcast hour, 1x60 or 2x30) in total duration.

Less experienced practitioners may be part of the team, as long as at least one key principal is eligible as above. The intention is not to exclude new talent, but encourage them to team up with more experienced practitioners.

Outstanding applicants or projects that emerge through the Seed Funding strand or Screen Territory’s Special Initiatives may be invited to apply to the Project Development strand. This provides the opportunity for talented practitioners to access single-project development funds even where minimum credit requirements are not satisfied.

An ‘eligible screen credit’ is defined as a ‘produced by’, ‘directed by’ or ‘written by’ credit on a documentary or fiction project that has:

• been selected for an eligible event [see page 18], OR
• had a theatrical release [on a minimum of five screens, excluding festival screens, in one major territory], OR
• been broadcast on a recognised television network or channel, OR
• made available via a major online content provider.

Note that corporate, education, training or community access programs are not acceptable credits for eligibility purposes.
Project requirements
The following formats are eligible for funding through this program:

- feature films
- adult and children’s drama and narrative comedy including television series, miniseries, telemovies and web series
- content-rich factual and documentary theatrical, television or web programs.

Screen Territory expects to see evidence of strategies for audience engagement and/or marketplace interest in applications for projects at later stages of development. In the case of a broadcast documentary or television drama project, a letter of interest from a broadcaster may be required for applications for any rounds of funding beyond the first.

If your project relies on the participation of a particular person or people, you will need to have evidence that they consent to take part.

Funding is competitive; see ‘What are we looking for? page 10.

If the project has previously been declined for development funding, evidence of substantive changes must be provided.

Assessment
Eligible applications will be assessed taking into account:

The applicant and creative team
- The track record and demonstrated potential of the individual applicant or creative team in areas relevant to the project submitted.

The project
- The strength and distinctiveness of the concept or story idea, and its potential to engage an audience.
- The cultural significance of the project for the Northern Territory.
- The strength and quality of the submitted story materials (outline/short document, script, treatment etc).
- The feasibility of the project, and its likelihood of reaching an audience, including the strength of any marketplace interest or commitment already in place.

The development plan
- The development notes and the degree to which they articulate the issues to be faced in the next stage of development and outline the strategies to address them, and the appropriateness of the proposed delivery materials.
- The plan for use of Screen Territory funding, and the contributions of any other investors.
- The level of funding Screen Territory has previously committed to the project (if applicable).

Industry/business impact
- The percentage of copyright to be held by Territorians.
- The career benefits to Northern Territory key team members.

In order for Screen Territory to assess your application, you must submit the following:

- Producer notes (up to three pages) – a statement setting out the business case for the project, why the project is important to the Northern Territory, and the strategy for moving the project towards financing and audience.
  - Note: If a producer is not attached at this stage, you should address these points to the best of your ability; you must also explain why you have applied without a producer and outline your strategy and timeframe for securing one.
- Development budget breakdown for your submitted development plan, reflecting Screen Territory's contribution and that of other investors including the applicant (template available on the Screen Territory website).

Supporting materials

- Where applicable, agreements for key creatives attached to the stage of development applied for (eg writer’s agreement, script editor/developer’s agreement – see ‘Chain of title documents’ below)
- If a project is based on an underlying work, evidence that you hold an option (option agreement) or intend to purchase an option (e.g. you have included the cost of the option in your application for development funding) – see ‘Chain of title documents’ below.
- If the application involves a co-production with a non-NT company, evidence of key deal terms setting out sharing of creative involvement, credits, copyright, recoupment and profit entitlements.
- Evidence of marketplace interest (if applicable).
• If the project relies on the participation of a particular person or people, evidence that they consent to take part.

• If the project is being submitted for a second time after a previous unsuccessful application, a summary of the substantial changes made that make it eligible to be considered again.

Where there is Indigenous community participation or content involved in the project:

• a statement setting out how you are approaching the Indigenous content or participation with regard to appropriate protocols, even if the content is not specific to a particular community or individual. The statement should be based on the checklists for the relevant stage of production available in Screen Australia’s guide Pathways & Protocols: a filmmaker’s guide to working with Indigenous people, culture and concepts

• evidence of consultation to date

• if the project will involve particular Indigenous individuals or communities, signed letters of consent confirming their willingness to participate.

Story documents

A good reference for understanding the different types of story document is the Screen Australia guide What is a synopsis, an outline, a treatment?

For example, the aim of a project ‘outline’ or ‘short document’ is to depict the concept and the main points of the story, evoking the experience of the film, whether drama or documentary. The document should have a clear beginning, middle and end, and a solid structure with clear, identified pivotal story points, and a core conflict that drives the story.

If the project is an adaptation of an existing work, the document should detail the main points of the envisaged screen story and the intended point of view. The outline needs to stand on its own, and evoke the experience of the film, as we will not be reading the underlying work. We are interested in your intended take on the material, and how you are going to turn it into a screen story.

‘Chain of title’ documents

Copyright claims are usually demonstrated through a series of documents known as the ‘chain of title’, which establishes that the applicant owns or controls all necessary underlying rights in order to fully develop, produce and market their project.

At development stage, typical chain of title documents for a producer might be a scriptwriter’s agreement, a script editor/developer’s agreement, and an option agreement if the project is based on an underlying work like a book or play.

For option agreements, note that Screen Territory expects the accumulated periods of an option and its subsequent extensions to be at least three and a half years. We advise producers to have an option to acquire where possible sequel, prequel, remake, TV spin-off rights and all ancillary rights as these rights will be required at financing stage.

All relevant chain of title documents must be provided to Screen Territory at the time of application.

Reporting and acquittal

If you are successful in receiving a Project Development grant, your grant agreement will set out the reports and materials you have agreed to deliver in order to acquit the grant (based on your development plan), and an agreed project end date. You will be required to acquit the grant one month after the agreed project end date.

Reports and deliverables vary from project to project; however, in general you may need to provide the following:

• Deliverables relevant to your project development plan

• A report detailing:
  o This stage: The work undertaken during this stage of development, including how you have addressed your project’s development goals.
Next stage: The proposed next steps for developing the project, including any specific production elements (such as key creative personnel including producer, director, on screen personnel, mentors).

(Where applicable) a Marketing and Finance Plan including a proposed budget and finance plan, that explains the strategy for financing the project, including commercial or market interest you have attracted or are hoping to attract.

- A signed breakdown of income and expenditure for the project including financial support received from the Territory or a third party.

</tbody>
</table>

Funding available

Base funding is available up to $20,000 or up to 10% of the project’s expenditure in the Northern Territory, whichever is less. This may be supplemented by additional incentives based on fulfilment of criteria set out in these guidelines, up to a maximum of $80,000 in total or 15% of the Northern Territory spend, whichever is less.

Applications for amounts above these thresholds may be submitted in certain circumstances, with the prior approval of Screen Territory.

Screen Territory will also consider a limited number of applications for completion funds to support post-production, which should be undertaken in the Northern Territory as far as possible. Applicants and projects must meet Screen Territory eligibility criteria.

Whether a particular project will be funded, and the amount of Screen Territory funding, will be determined by the decision-making process and the total demand on available funds.
Eligibility

All applications must meet the general eligibility requirements for Screen Territory funding, in addition to the following (see ‘General eligibility’, page 5, for definitions of key terms):

Who can apply

Screen Territory expects the applicant to be a Northern Territory (NT) company or an NT company in a genuine co-production relationship with a non-NT production company.

Non-NT companies are only eligible to apply for Production Finance where significant benefits to the Northern Territory can be demonstrated (see assessment criteria). Non-NT companies considering applying must contact Screen Territory to discuss their plans at least a month before they intend to submit their application.

Project requirements

The following formats are eligible for funding through this program:

- feature films
- adult and children’s drama and narrative comedy including television series, miniseries, telemovies and web series
- content-rich factual and documentary theatrical, television or web projects.

Screen Territory does not fund the following through this program:

- Commercial/corporate videos and advertisements; educational programs; infotainment, lifestyle, travel, 'how to' or other magazine-style programs
- sport, current affairs and news
- community television
- shorts, short features (under 60 minutes duration) except as part of special initiatives
- projects that are being produced as part of a course of study.

Productions will usually be fully financed at the time of application, with the exception of contributions being sought from Screen Territory and concurrent rounds at other state, federal or international agencies.

Producers must be able to demonstrate that their project will be completed and delivered and has a confirmed pathway to audience (see box below).

Pathways to audience

All projects must be able to demonstrate a clear pathway to audience.

For content with traditional marketplace attachments such as distributor guarantees, broadcast presales or festival investment, relevant agreements or letters of interest must be provided.

For non-traditional attachments, a described pathway to audience could involve:

- demonstrated community of interest in topic
- marketing plans
- existing database and promotional channels
- existing and potential partnerships with organisations tied to significant communities of interest
- analytics of audience engagement in existing program related content and platforms (e.g., websites, social media channels and trailers).

For example, a VOD release on an obscure website would not be sufficient by itself. You would need to support this with proof of an established community of interest or audience being driven to the website by a marketing campaign.

Applicants proposing alternative pathways should submit copies of any marketing plans as well as provide detail on relevant mailing lists, audience analytics and/or existing partnerships with organisations.
Assessment and funding levels

Screen Territory production funding is limited, and the focus is strongly on achieving outcomes for the Northern Territory and the Northern Territory screen production industry.

Whether to provide funding, and the amount of funding, are determined as part of the assessment process (see 'Information for applicants'), taking into account the criteria set out below.

Base funding

Projects can apply for base funding up to $20,000 or up to 10% of Territory spend, whichever is less. Applications are assessed taking into account:

Eligibility
- Whether or not the applicant and project meet the published eligibility criteria.
- The finance plan, and the level of commitment from financing partners
- The creative strength of the project and its key principals (generally the producer, writer, director)
- The economic benefits to the Northern Territory, including:
  - amount of Northern Territory spend
  - the ratio of proposed Screen Territory investment to proposed budget
  - the percentage of Northern Territory spend in relation to the total budget, and
  - the number of employment opportunities for Northern Territory cast and crew
- The cultural/social benefits to the Northern Territory, including:
  - the uniqueness and relevance of the story to the Northern Territory
  - the extent to which the project will raise the profile of the Territory and its people.

Incentive funding

Base funding may be supplemented by additional incentives, up to a maximum of $80,000 in total or 15% of the Northern Territory spend, whichever is less. (Applications for amounts above these thresholds will only be accepted with prior approval from Screen Territory.)

NT production company incentive

Additional funds up to $45,000 may be available for a project where the Northern Territory producer:
- owns 100% of the rights or an equal pro rata share with other producers in a co-production, and/or
- was significantly instrumental in developing the project and raising finance for the project.

The amount of funding is determined taking into account:
- the track record and demonstrated potential of the producer and production company in areas relevant to the project submitted, and the likelihood that they will deliver the project to a high standard
- the developmental impact on the company of the project and the additional Screen Territory funds, including the extent to which they will:
  - enhance the ongoing sustainability of the company; and/or
  - enable strategic alliances or deals with new partners, international sales agents and/or distributors; and/or
  - allow the applicant to produce a project in a new genre and/or through an improved business arrangement that has not previously existed for the applicant.

Industry development incentive

Additional funds up to $15,000 may be available for a project where:
- the director and/or writer are Northern Territory residents, and/or
- a significant proportion of Heads of Department are Territory residents, and/or
- at least one paid attachment for NT practitioners is provided; this may be in any area – directing, research, writing, camera department, sound department, art department, production department, editing and post-production (attachments must meet standards specified by Screen Territory – refer to Attachments, Mentorships and Internships program.)

The amount of funding is determined taking into account:
- the extent to which the project will provide demonstrable career benefits for Territory creatives and technicians.

Application materials

In order for Screen Territory to assess your application, you must submit the following:

Company and creative team
- Current one-page CVs for all team members
- A current production company CV
- A ‘business impact statement’ setting out how this project will contribute to and/or help build the Northern Territory applicant’s business, and the Northern Territory industry more broadly.

Project information
- One-sentence synopsis
- One-paragraph (3–4 line) synopsis
- Statement from the director detailing their creative vision for the project
- Statement from the producer(s) detailing their vision for the project, including its connection with its intended audience, commercial potential and financing strategy
- Industry-standard budget (see Screen Australia’s A-Z budget templates)
- Current finance plan clearly setting out all sources of finance that add up to the project budget, and their status
- Production schedule including key milestones
- Marketing and release plan (at least one page), including, as relevant, theatrical release, broadcast, film festival pathway, and/or innovative distribution strategy, supported by relevant agreements or other documents (see ‘Pathways to audience’)
- Statement of copyright, and supporting chain of title documents (see box below).

For feature films and telemovies
- Full and complete shooting script, including date and draft number, presented to industry standard.

For television drama series and web series
- A final outline or treatment
- A series bible and at least one episode script.

For documentaries
- A project proposal, treatment and/or scripts that demonstrate the project is production ready
- Signed release forms for key participants.

Other materials (optional)

You may wish to include other materials that evoke the tone, mood and style of the project, such as:
- photographs, artworks, a mood reel, a look book, storyboards, a pilot episode, a sample filmed scene, or music
- a pitch to camera, maximum three minutes (via downloadable and password protected link only).

Where there is Indigenous community participation or content involved in the project, you must provide:
- a statement setting out how you are approaching the Indigenous content or participation with regard to appropriate protocols, even if the content is not specific to a particular community or individual. You must demonstrate that you have a consultation plan covering the full production process and are following it. The statement should be based on the checklists available in
Screen Australia’s guide Pathways & Protocols: a filmmaker’s guide to working with Indigenous people, culture and concepts

- evidence of consultation to date
- if the project will involve particular Indigenous individuals or communities, signed letters of consent confirming their willingness to participate.

‘Chain of title’ documents

Copyright claims are usually demonstrated through a series of documents known as the ‘chain of title’, which establishes that the applicant owns or controls all necessary underlying rights in order to fully develop, produce and market their project.

Typical chain of title documents might be a scriptwriter’s agreement, a script editor/developer’s agreement, an option or assignment agreement if the project is based on an underlying work like a book or play, or development agreements with funding agencies.

For option agreements, note that Screen Territory expects the accumulated periods of an option and its subsequent extensions to be at least three and a half years. We advise producers to have an option to acquire where possible sequel, prequel, remake, TV spin-off rights and all ancillary rights as these rights will be required at financing stage.

All relevant chain of title documents must be provided to Screen Territory at the time of application.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT

Agency objective

Skilled and creative Territory practitioners.

Program purpose

To identify emerging talent and establish career pathways through internships and mentoring to encourage the next generation to remain in the NT.

Program structure
